- Yungang Grottoes - The 53 grottoes in Yungang Grottoes include some 1,100 niches with about 51,000 statues – a treasure – trove of cave art that combines traditional Chinese art forms with foreign influence, particularly Greek and Indian. Sculptures here are noted for their vigorous features and rich variety that range from the smallest, only 2 centimeters high, to the tallest – a Buddha 17 meters high. The tallest Buddha is surrounded by many small Buddhas in Grotto No. 5, also called the Big Buddha's Cave.

- Hanging Temple, located 5 kilometers east of the city of Yang-yuan, between the two peaks of the Beiyue- Mountains. The temple has a history of more than 1,400 years. About 40 buildings survived are scattered halfway up the mountain on the cliff face or slopes, from 26 to 50 meters above the foot of the mountain. The temple buildings which seem to be hanging in midair on the cliffs are unique in structure. Within the temple are numerous pictures and 78 color statues made of copper, iron or stone.
