【HARBIN】

- The northern Chinese city of Harbin is often called the "Ice City". Located along the Russian-Chinese border, the city's culture is a rich and diverse mixture of many ethnic minorities from across Asia and other neighbouring countries.
- Sun Island: The Sun Island scenic spot is located at the north of the Songhua River main waterway, opposite downtown Harbin. During winter, it is an ideal place for winter swimming, ice-sailing, sledging as well as other recreational ice and snow activities.
- The St. Sophia Church: It is well worth a look if old churches are of interest to you. You will probably be surprised to see such grand church buildings in China. It was actually built under Russian influence. It is very much an active orthodox church with regular services.
- Ice Lantern Festival. Harbin hosts the most famous "Ice Lantern Festival" in China and it is the premier tourist attraction. It offers a display of various ice sculptures on a massive scale. As night falls, it resembles a fantasyland.
- Erlongshan Longzhu Ski Resort: Erlongshan Longzhu (dragon pearl) Ski Resort, is located about 60KM west to Harbin, the capital of Helongjiang Province. Built in 1999, the top altitude is 266 meters while the resort covers some 780000sq meters, with 8 trails for beginner, middle and advanced skiers, with 6 trails totaling 5600 meters for alpine skiers with slopes range from 3° to 30°.

【CHANGCHUN】

- Changchun was the capital of the puppet state "Manchukuo" and it is the "seat of power" for 14 years of the last emperor, Henry Puyi.
- Puppet Emperor's Palace: During the Japanese occupation of Manchuria (1931-1945), the last emperor of the Qing dynasty (1644-1911) Puyi was installed as the "puppet" ruler of the renamed state of Manchukuo. The Puppet Emperor's Palace was built by the Japanese especially for Puyi to inhabit.

【JILIN】

- Located in the centre of northeast China. As part of China's industrial heartland there is plenty of evidence of the effects of industrialization in this province. Beside Industrialization, it also has some of the natural scenery.
- Songhua Lake: A major national area of historical interest and beautiful scenery located on the upper reaches of the Second Songhua River.
- Jilin Rime: Rime in the city of Jilin is listed as one of the four natural wonders in China. People admire the beauty of the magnificent rime at different hours: to watch heavy fog at night, rime early in the morning, and melting-off rime at noon.

【SHENYANG】

- Shenyang Imperial palace: an excellently well-preserved cultural relic. Although it is considered a miniature of the Forbidden City in Beijing, the Palace by comparison is smaller in scale. The Manchurian influence can be seen from its architecture, and shows a vast departure in style from its predecessor.

【Dalian】

- Xinghai Square: one of the major cultural and historical landmarks of the city. It is the most recognizable landmarks of the city and has even become synonymous with the existence of the city. Situated on the coast south west of the city center, Xinghai Square is the largest square in Asia. The square covers a total area of 45, 000 square meters and the name of the square means "the Sea of Stars" in Chinese. The name of the square resembles the shape and design of the center of the square, which looks like a star, with two white marble pillars and 9 big dings.
